colors are making a stunning comeback. Ever feel like pairing a cute little outfit with a bold accessory or garment, but can't quite figure out what it should be? Better yet, a garment that can be worn over practically any outfit, from a teeny, little crop top to a pair of flare pants? Here at Cosmopolitan, we are here to help every baddie out in the best way possible. Are you up for the challenge?

Remember when it was the rise of COVID exactly two terribly long years ago, and we couldn't even imagine stepping outside in cute clothes because we had nowhere to go? Although we wanted to go out, we couldn't, so a cute little comfy set was the only thing we wanted to wear, duh. This fashion trend gives us the best of both worlds, as Hannah Montana once said. Oversized blazers: the definition of fashion that is boujee, but comfier than a classic, tighter blazer. Changing what is underneath the blazer changes the entire look of the outfit. Let's say you had work from 9-5, but then had a night out on the town with your gal pals and you needed to change ever so quickly. Not only are oversized blazers becoming a garment in business attire, but casual as well tbh. Let's teach you how to pair them with the best outfits.

Oversized blazers are the cutest accessory to pair with a variety of pants, such as dress pants, shorts, skirts, dresses, and even casual pants such as biker shorts and better yet, leggings. The hottest new garment to throw on under a blazer is a sexy little bra or bralette, or a short little crop top. Out with the tight and in with a comfy vibe. You don't have to be part of the rich and famous to wear this trend, lower-end, more affordable stores such as Zara and H&M sell this trend as well. The bright oversized blazers this season are more on the plain side, so it could be paired with the plainest outfit, or the most patterned you've ever seen. Don't know what shoes to wear? Chunky shoes are the new wave no matter the season, so both open-toed and closed-toe chunky platforms are a go. The looks strutting down the catwalk this year have shown that you are not limited to wearing bright, flashy colors during the spring and summer. Fall/winter collections feature bright oversized blazers, such as the Valentino and Etro autumn/winter collections that are featured below. Celebrities have also followed this trend in their daily lives, shown below on Sandra Bullock as she was attending The Late Show with Stephen Colbert. Also, it was shown on Zendaya when she attended the Valentino show during Paris Autumn/Winter fashion week on March 6, and Blake Lively as she attended the Michael Kors Autumn/Winter 2022 show.
